

P. Diddy sued for $5M

PAGE 9

10,000 'Idol' wannabes

PAGE 17

FOOD FIGHT

For Pete's sake

A teary-eyed Pete Sampras officially retired from tennis at the U.S. Open last night. "Saying goodbye is not easy — but I know it's time in my heart," the 32-year-old legend (right) said as his wife, Bridgette, and baby, Christian (above) looked on.

SEE SPORTS

Anthony J. Casano

Fan snacks seized at U.S. Open

Guards at the U.S. Open launched a sneak snack attack on unsuspecting fans yesterday, barring them from bringing in any food whatsoever because of "security" concerns.

Many fans were forced to try to wolf down what they had or empty their bottles (right) before entering the gates, or risk having their goodies tossed in the trash — unless they coughed up the $5 "check-in" fee to have them stored.

Irate visitors griped that the move was an attempt to force them to swallow outrageous prices for concession food inside.

FULL STORY: PAGES 4-5

NEW YORK POST/ERIC C. RICHMOND